

This statewide academy is important for community leaders interested in learning how to use their new community foundations and county endowment entities to enhance the quality of life and the economic vitality of Iowa communities.

- Learn why it is important for county foundation entities to think about being more than just a mechanism for locally distributing gambling dollars

- Learn from the Aspen Institute about strategies for community foundations in supporting entrepreneurship, economic growth, and community vitality

- Examine ways in which community and school foundations are learning to work together. Learn about the strengths that each can bring to the table, the collaboration issues involved, and why it may be mutually beneficial to overcome the turf issues

- Learn from the nationally recognized Stelter Group about strategies and best practices that work to identify, make contact, and cultivate donors and financial advisors

- Hear local leaders from across Iowa discuss successes and innovations in creating a culture for community philanthropy
